

"The future is as bright as the promises of God!"

It was at one of our last services here in the U.S. that a young woman spoke to me of her intense burden and constant prayers for Mexico. With tears in her eyes she told me that when she prays, she senses that God is holding in His hand a huge pitcher of blessing, ready to pour it out on this great nation.

Interesting words, especially in light of several current issues. In the recent presidential election no winner was declared for several weeks, which has resulted in severe confusion politically and economically. Other challenges and issues not so well advertised are resulting in social conflicts that make the future very difficult to predict. It is into this environment we find ourselves now ready to return for our second term, and we go with excitement and high motivation. Why? Well, the reason is simple. In the words of William Carey, father of modern day missions: "The future is as bright as the promises of God."

In a world of instability, terrorist attacks, natural disasters and economic fragility, the most logical place to be is in the place of greatest security - - - which is in the center of God's will. There, and only there, can we see the true nature of the future. It's there that we see God's readiness to pour out His blessing over an individual or over a nation. It's there that we recognize that the future really is as bright as His promises!

Looking Ahead...

In September we fly to Costa Rica for a 6-week language refresher course. Then, fly back to NJ in mid-October, pick up our STL vehicle and drive back to Mexico City. We expect to arrive back by the end of October.

Please remember us in prayer during these weeks of travel!

On the road again!

After a great year home we are ready to return to Mexico City, thanks to the faithfulness of our supporting churches as well as many new supporters. This is a true partnership - as some send, others go, and God brings the increase. We deeply appreciate the faithfulness in prayer and finances that makes this ministry possible.

Thanks!!
